CZECH REPUBLIC- Czech Women's Lobby	Johanna Nejedlová Journalist and co-founder of Konsent johanna@konsent.cz 	Johanna Nejedlová co-founded Konsent, in 2016, an organisation aiming to change the conversation surrounding traditional Czech attitudes towards sex and sexual violence. Working along the platform of "Když to nechce, tak to nechce" ("If she doesn't want to, she doesn't want to,") Johanna has been a dynamic force in guiding young Czech women towards a different aspect of their own rights and power. Thanks to a grant from the US Embassy, Konsent produced a video for "Když to nechce, tak to nechce" which addresses the very necessary subject of her organisation's name. Upon its release Johanna was flooded with emails from girls and young women eager to be heard and to volunteer their time. Johanna began writing a column for Alarm, a popular and savvy publication focusing on culture, society, and politics. She teamed up with artists to promote a groundbreaking art installation forcing the public to acknowledge the reality of incest. Konsent held a workshop on street harassment at the first conference on harassment in public space in the Czech Republic, spearheaded by Kongres žen (Congress of Women.) Johanna is member of the Czech Women's Lobby working group focusing on violence against women. She has given numerous interviews and fights tirelessly for the media to highlight the autonomy of women's bodies.	Czech Women's Lobby https://www.czlobby.cz/en info@czlobby.cz https://www.facebook.com/czlobby https://twitter.com/czlobby Konsent https://www.konsent.cz/ https://www.facebook.com/kdyztonechce https://www.instagram.com/konsent/
